THE BIG CONVENTION IN FULL SWING--THOUSANDS MARCH IN THE PARADE

Rowles Murderer Is Caught In Cleveland Brought Here Today

Mike Dennery, The "Big Swede", Captured After Seven Months Chase--County Detective Escorts Him To Clearfield

SCORE ANOTHER HIT FOR THE PROGRESS

County Detective Jeffries arrived in town this morning with Mike Dennery who is known as the "Big Swede" and who is wanted here for the Rowles' murder committed last winter. Detective Jeffries brought Dennery from Cleveland to DuBois on the early morning flyer and came to Clearfield on the firemen's excursion.

Yesterday the Progress told you that the big swede had been caught but were unable to get a confirmation of this report from local authorities. Our news connection, however, enabled us to publish this information in advance of any other source.

The capture of the Big Swede culminates a chase of several months during all of which time the authorities knew about where he was, but not until the last two or three days could they definitely locate him.

On arriving in Clearfield this morning the Big Swede did not seem at all worried, but marched up the street from the depot and hardly anyone suspected that he was the man wanted for the crime of murder. He was not handcuffed and walked along with the county detective much in the same manner as anyone coming to the Firemen's Convention would.

"ONE WHO KNOWS" SENDS DETAILS OF ACCIDENT

Corrects Reports to Progress About Grampian Auto Smash-up

Grampian, Pa., 8-22-16. Clearfield Progress, Clearfield, Pa.,

Dear Sirs: We noticed in the Monday evening Progress a number of mistakes in the report of the automobile accident which happened Monday morning at 1:30 o'clock a. m. at a curve beyond Grampian near Mrs. Albert Kester's. John McDevitt and Mr. Heath, returning from DuBois on Mr. McDevitt's motorcycle arrived on the scene about five minutes after the accident occurred. One of the ladies, who was slightly injured, ran to the home of Mrs. Albert Kester and telephoned to Dr. Miller of Grampian to come at once and she also telephoned to the DuBois garage and Grampian garage for cars to take the injured home. Dr. Miller arrived on the scene about 20 minutes afterward and immediately reduced the fractured arm of Miss Nell Clark.

He then rendered such aid to Mr. Deitz as possible under such circumstances. At about this time Mr. Wigglesworth of the Grampian garage arrived and took Miss Nell Clark, and a lady friend and one of the gentlemen to their homes in DuBois. About 1 hour and a half from this time Mr. Whitmarsh of DuBois arrived in his automobile and bringing with him Dr. Hughes of DuBois, when the rest of the injured party were immediately placed in the car and started for DuBois. We make this statement in defense of Dr. Miller, who received but slight credit whereas he having done all the work that was rendered there. Dr. Miller knows nothing of this statement being sent in. We feel like giving Dr. Miller justice, hoping to see this statement in a prominent place in your paper.

MAD DOG BITES EIGHT.

Pittsburgh, Aug. 24.—(By United Press)—Eight persons are under close observation in a hospital here today who were all slightly bitten on July 12, by a mad dog, following the death of Mrs. Mary Summerville of Monongahela City, who according to the doctors' diagnosis died from hydrophobia. She died in great agony. Shortly after the homes of three families who had been visiting Mrs. Summerville were next visited.

FUN AND MUSIC TO FEATURE CAMPAIGN

Local Talent Play is Replete With Novelties.

Undoubtedly one of the season's most notable and certainly most worthy events will be the presentation next week of the big local talent play "Betty's Campaign," under the auspices of the Ladies Auxiliary of the hospital.

A cast of some hundred local people will present the farce, and in this clever and catchy comedy Clearfield will have an opportunity of witnessing her best talent in two nights of fun, frolic and music.

The play is one of the most original and clever entertainments before the public—and any person, who enjoys fun and a good laugh, should not fail to take in "Betty's Campaign," which is just brimming over with laughter and replete with charming specialties.

Mr. Innes, the director, who is a clever impersonator, will play the role of "Betty" and his performance is worth seeing.

BIGLER CAMP MEETING WILL BE CONTINUED

A. C. Lansbery, proprietor and manager of the Bigler Camp meeting and grounds, has been prevailed upon to continue the meeting this week over until next Sabbath, September 3. The grounds are beautiful and are well seated and lighted artistically. A fine flowing fountain is a very attractive curiosity. On Sunday next Rev. E. G. Sawyer, the evangelist pastor, will have charge of the services. He will preach the sermons and Miss Sawyer, his daughter, will have charge of the music.

Mr. Lansbery desires the public to know that all automobiles will be admitted into the grounds and will be provided with the best of shade free. All are invited to spend next Sunday at Bigler Camp Meeting.

178 DELEGATES ATTEND THE BIG HONOR BANQUET

Judge Bonniwell, Assistant Fire Marshal Wolfe and Judge Bell, Guests of Honor

GRAND BALL GREAT SUCCESS

The banquet and ball given by the local firemen in honor of the visiting delegates to the twenty-fourth annual convention of the Central District Volunteer Firemen's association was a grand success and was pronounced the best in the history of the organization. The banquet was held in the dining hall of the Dimeling hotel and the ball in the ball room of the hotel immediately following the banquet.

A sumptuous repast was served by Manager McGinnis, of the Dimeling to the 178 delegates—honor guests who were present. The banquet started at seven o'clock sharp and continued until about nine thirty when the McKinley orchestra of Curwensville struck up the first one step in the ball room and all the delegates swarmed there to participate in the dancing.

At the banquet, District President and Local Chief J. D. Connelly acted as toastmaster and performed his duties with his usual grace, starting things off with a humorous, but fitting address. The first speaker was Burgess Callahan who extended to the delegates a warm welcome to Clearfield and opened up its doors to the honored guests, the firemen.

Judge Bell was then called upon and gave one of his usual interesting and amusing after-dinner speeches. Assistant State Fire Marshal Charles Dr. Wolfe was present, acting in his official capacity and gave an address filled with good information and advice. He was also a guest of honor in the parade. Judge Eugene C. Bonniwell of Philadelphia, president of the state firemen's association and a guest of honor of the local organization, spoke. Dr. Bender gave the invocation and Rev. Mechen dismissed the gathering.

The grand ball in the dancing hall was attended by over one hundred firemen and invited guests. The Curwensville orchestra furnished the music for the occasion. The first one step was started at nine thirty and the home waltz was not played until after twelve thirty o'clock. Everyone reports a wonderful time.

HUGHES ABOUT READY FOR WEEK'S VACATION

Ogden, Utah, Aug. 24.—Ogden gave Charles E. Hughes a tremendous welcome this afternoon when the Republican candidate arrived to address a crowd which jammed the city's largest auditorium. He will leave shortly after speaking here for Salt Lake City, 30 miles south, where he will deliver his second and last address in Utah this evening.

While showing no marked effects of his swift trans-continental campaign trip which opened August 5, Governor Hughes is looking forward to a week's vacation in the Estes Park region of the Rocky Mountains beginning next Sunday.

IRVONA MAN FRACTURES ARM WHILE CRANKING CAR

While cranking up his automobile at the corner of Market and Second streets this morning about 10 o'clock, L. Campbell of Irvona received a fractured arm. The crank kicked back striking his arm below the elbow. He was immediately taken to the Clearfield hospital where it was given the proper treatment.

Rev. E. V. Brown's Sunday School class of the Trinity M. E. Church held their annual basket picnic at the Clearfield Driving Park this afternoon.

GENIUSES DESERT FIRST —LACK STABILITY

Washington, Aug. 24.—Men with long, tapering "piano" fingers are apt to desert after short service, while those having stubby digits, denoting stability of character and utter lack of artistic temperament, usually stand by their oaths and make the best marines, according to finger print experts at headquarters of the United States Marine Corps.

Although desertions from the corps are light at all times it has been found that actors, sign writers, and, strange to say, waiters, furnish the largest number of deserters.

Records, including finger prints, of all men enlisted in the marine corps are kept at headquarters for purposes of identification, and there are cases on record where bodies, with finger tips intact, have been positively identified through the finger print medium.

The law requires every pupil in the public school to be vaccinated. Pupils who expect to attend the public school this year and are not vaccinated should be vaccinated now. It is not fair for the pupil or to the teacher to have the pupil attend school while undergoing the physical disadvantage incident to being vaccinated.

NEW ARGENTINE PRESIDENT HAS NO PLATFORM

Country Will Start On Big Experiment When Dr. Irigoyen Takes Oath of Office

MAY DISBAND RADICAL PARTY

By Chas. P. Stewart (United Press Staff Correspondent) Buenos Aires, Aug. 1.—(By Mail)—When Hipolito Irigoyen takes the oath of office October 12 as president of Argentina, his country will start on one of the biggest experiments ever undertaken by a republic. Dr. Irigoyen will head the first Radical administration in Argentina.

What the doctor's idea of radicalism is, nobody knows. He has made no speeches. He has written almost nothing. He has never defined his position. What he intends to do as president, not one of his countrymen can guess. Nobody knows whether he is Pan-American.

There are even reports that Dr. Irigoyen will issue a manifesto soon dissolving the party itself, now that an honest ballot, as he is said to believe, has been guaranteed. This however is mere surmise.

The doctor was elected president because a majority of the voters trusted him, personally, implicitly and blindly.

Those who believe in him consider him Argentina's greatest man. His opponents regard him as extremely dangerous, and look forward to his administration with the gravest misgivings.

Dr. Irigoyen is about 60, tall, powerfully built, imposing man, and very dark. His blood is Spanish Basque with a slight Indian strain, some say.

He is smoothly shaven, except for a very thin black mustache. Popular rumor is that the thinness is due to the doctor's custom of extracting the white hairs, which are reported to have appeared so numerous in recent years as to leave but a scattering representation after their elimination.

The new president began life poor. He is self-educated but did his work so well that, today, he is a highly cultivated man.

Most prominent South Americans possess some academic degree entitling them to the prefix of "doctor" before their names. Irigoyen is spoken of as "doctor" because he is prominent. The title is one of courtesy. He lacks the degree.

He is now very rich. His wealth was accumulated in successful land transactions. By occupation he is a ranchman on a huge scale. Part of his time he spends on his "estancia" in the country; the rest at his very modest residence in Buenos Aires.

For a long time, for pure recreation, he held the professorship of civic instruction at the Buenos Aires Escuela Normal de Mujeres, or Normal School for Women. His salary for this work he turned over regularly to the Sociedad de Beneficencia, or United Charities of Buenos Aires. Twelve years ago a president who was his personal enemy caused his removal from this post in the normal school and he has never held it since.

For twenty years he has been the Radical party's leader. His authority has been absolute. His opponents within the party's ranks have been few and, sooner or later, he has always won them over.

"His mere presence," as one of his admirers expresses it, "is magnetic." Twice he has been concerned in attempted revolutions. He was very successful but finally failed through

Lively Scenes Mark Second Day of Big Firemen's Convention

Officers Elected For Coming Year at Business Meeting Held Yesterday Afternoon In Dimeling Hotel

THOUSANDS THROG STREETS OF TOWN

Gay scenes, miniature parades and the swarming in of thousands of firemen, marked the opening of the second and biggest day of the twenty-fourth annual convention and tournament of the Central District Volunteer Firemen's Association which started yesterday morning and which will close at sometime tonight. Thousands of firemen and citizens thronged the streets all morning arriving here on regular and special trains on all roads, hundreds of automobiles and as many other vehicles.

Many of the business houses and manufacturing plants have been closed or will close about noon so that the employees will be able to participate in the festivities. Every person within a radius of twenty miles has come to Clearfield to watch the tournament and enjoy the hospitality of Clearfield, which has been given over entirely to the firemen.

A special train on the B. R. & P. arriving here about nine o'clock brought the DuBois fire companies and other companies from that section which were accompanied by the Holy Name band of DuBois under the leadership of Con Allen, postmaster of DuBois. Over three hundred marched in the parade headed by the band playing "America, I Love You," from the station to the center of the town.

Altoona, Tyrone and other companies on the P. R. R. line came in a special train pulling in at ten o'clock. Four bands with about eight fire companies formed a parade at the station and marched to the center of the town. About a dozen of these parades stirred up the enthusiasm of the firemen early this morning and from ten o'clock until noon the gayest scenes ever witnessed in Clearfield were in progress.

The people kept swarming in to the Big Convention during the entire morning and with the hundreds that were here yesterday make the largest crowd that has thronged the streets of this town. Not since the last firemen's convention held here, has such a lively crowd visited the town for a convention. The hotels are filled to capacity and many boarding houses and private homes are overflowing.

OFFICERS ARE ELECTED.

The business meeting of the convention was called to order yesterday afternoon at two o'clock by the District President, J. D. Connelly who is also chief of the Clearfield Fire Department. After transacting the regular business of the year the following officers were elected:

President, Charles E. Messner, of Jersey Shore.
Vice President, J. D. Blair, of Patton.
Vice President, Paul D. Portney, of Bellefonte.
Secretary, W. C. Langsford, of Houtzdale (Re-elected).
Treasurer, Frank W. Grebe, Philipsburg.
Delegate to State Convention, J. D. Connelly, Clearfield.
Alternate, Paul D. Portney.

Over one thousand persons, consisting of twenty five fire companies and eight bands and one drum corps marched for over two hours today in the parade of the Central Pennsylvania Volunteer Firemen's Association, which was the biggest demonstration ever witnessed in Clearfield. It took half an hour for the entire parade to pass a spot on Second street.

The parade formed on South Second street about 11 o'clock and was disbanded shortly after one o'clock. The police patrol, Fifth Regiment Band, and Chief Marshal J. C. Barclay, headed the parade and were followed by the borough council and burgesses and veteran firemen in automobiles. The guests of honor, Judge Singleton Bell, Judge Bonniwell, State Fire Marshal Wolfe and Chas. E. Messner, District President-elect, followed in Judge Bell's automobile which was artistically and handsomely decorated in plumes and bunting.

Prizes will be awarded to the largest company in line, the best equipped company in line and the best band in line of parade. The prizes are Fred G. Betts, Fred Weaver, Fred Kerr, Fred Messner and F. G. Smith for the best equipped and best drilled company. This committee will also judge the tournament at the park. Prof. Thayer will judge the band concert and the bands in the parade. John M. Bain and O. B. McCullough are the judges of the companies.

The prizes have not been awarded yet. The tournament at the park started at one-thirty and was witnessed by thousands.

Expert Advice For the Automobile Owner

Queries and Replies Covering Matters of Importance to the Man Who Runs a Car

I read an article about set spark which stated that the piston should be within one-half inch of top on compression stroke when the spark should occur. Is this right? If so, I have been setting mine wrong. My engine has a set spark, and the only gas control is a foot accelerator. Now, when the throttle is closed for idle running I have my spark occur when the piston is at top dead center on compression stroke. If I change it to occur one-half inch before top center, will it be all right? What is the best position for the most power obtainable.

Carry the spark as far ahead as you can without having the engine knock and without having it kick back in starting. The distance in advance of dead center depends on the speed of the motor and on the type of ignition apparatus. This is true because the higher the motor speed the farther in advance should be the spark and the greater the mechanical and electrical lag in the ignition apparatus the further ahead the spark should be set.

I wish to increase my compression to 100 pounds. How much can I plane off my cylinder head, and how much will I have to raise my pistons?

It is impossible to tell you how much to reduce the volume of your combustion chamber to reach 100 pounds compression without knowing what the original volume is, or how much the bore of the cylinder is. The method of procedure, however, which you can follow to work out the problem for yourself is as follows: Multiply the compression pressure by the volume of your present combustion chamber and divide it by 100 to secure the total volume of the new combustion chamber.

What is the correct heat a tire should have in order to vulcanize, and how long should it be kept at that heat?

This depends whether it is the inner tube or outer tube you are vulcanizing, as far as time is concerned. Generally about fifteen minutes suffices to make an inner tube vulcanization at a temperature of about 145 degrees C. The tire shoe takes a longer time, depending on the depth of vulcanization. It would be best to simply follow the directions with your vulcanizing outfit for practical results, as this has been worked out to give proper temperatures for the conditions for which it is designed.

Why is the spark advanced when cranking on the magneto, and why should a magneto armature run at engine speed on four cycle, four cylinder engines?

The spark is advanced to take care of mechanical and electrical lag and to make the explosion occur as nearly as possible to upper dead center. In cranking, if the spark occurs at the point of highest compression, ignition is much more certain.

The magneto produces two sparks to the revolution, and since a four cylinder, four cycle engine has two explosions to the revolution, it is necessary in order to have the two sparks to have the magneto operating at engine speed.

Is it more accurate to use a hydrometer syringe or a voltmeter to get the results of the life in a storage battery?

The hydrometer will tell you one thing and the voltmeter another in examining the condition of a battery. The hydrometer tells you the specific gravity of the electrolyte, which must be within certain limits in order for the battery to function properly. If a hydrometer shows between 1.272 and 1.3 when the battery is fully charged the electrolyte is in proper condition. However, it is quite possible for the electrolyte to be in good condition and the battery to show a low voltage on the meter because the plates may be broken down or some other internal trouble not giving the full voltage.

to automobiles or any other piece of mechanism. It is the force which tends to produce rotation or torsion and is measured tangentially by multiplying the force by the radius about the axis of rotation—that is, the torque in given shaft would be equal to the power applied to the shaft times the distance of the tangential point of application from the axis of the shaft.

What is the approximate pull in pounds necessary to operate the service and emergency brakes, direct without any levers, on a medium weight touring car; also, the difference in the perimeter of the two brakes when expanded and contracted, and vice versa, or otherwise the brake displacement, in fully applying the brakes?

This varies through such a range that it is impossible to give any definite figures. It is also difficult to determine whether you mean that the brake is locked on the wheel or whether just applied gently. It may be stated, however, that an application pressure of twenty pounds should firmly close the levers.

The difference in perimeter of the two brakes when expanded and contracted and vice versa is simply the difference between the internal and external diameters of the brake drum. Since you do not mention the size drum you refer to, it is again impossible to give the definite figure, but, taking a standard fourteen inch drum external diameter having a thickness of one-fourth inch, the difference in diameter between the inner and outer circle would be one-half inch, and the difference in circumference would be one-half of 3.1416, or 1.57 inch.

Why do the cylinders of my four cylinder motor become hotter when driven at the rate of five miles an hour in first speed than when driven at fifteen miles an hour in third speed?

Because they do not get the same cooling effect. When traveling at five miles per hour on first speed your motor is turning over faster than when traveling at fifteen miles per hour on high speed. Consequently the cooling system has more work to do. The slow forward movement of your car prevents radiator and motor being fanned by the same air temperature. You can readily see that the car traveling forward at fifteen miles per hour, with revolutions per minute of motor the same or slower, will give a greater and more cooling breeze over radiator and motor than the slower moving car. This difference will determine to a large degree the cooling or overheating of the motor.

Will water remove carbon? If so, would you advise running it through the carburetor?

There are a great many who believe very strongly in the use of water for removing carbon, and there is no doubt but that it assists in this respect to some extent. It would be better, however, not to introduce it into the carburetor, but into the intake manifold between the carburetor and the cylinder. It should be allowed to enter in very minute quantities. The action which probably takes place is this: When the water enters the cylinder it is probably transformed into steam, which cuts away the carbon binding substances in the cylinder.

Will you please explain the firing and timing of eight and twelve cylinder motors?

The timing and firing of all multi-cylinder engines is arranged to accommodate the angles at which the different cranks are set to each other. This must be done in order that the engine will balance. Regardless of how the engine is timed or the firing order, each cylinder carries out its independent action as if it were a single cylinder motor, and it does not depend on any other cylinder to assist it in carrying out its cycle. The firing order naturally depends altogether on the valve timing of each cylinder, since it is only a matter of exploding the charge which is compressed in the proper cylinder. The firing orders of eight and twelve cylinders are as follows, since the angle of the crank is just exactly the same as if there were two four cylinder engines operating on the same crank shaft, which is exactly what holds true in both cases. The same relationship holds true between twelve and sixteen.

Please explain the meaning of the word cycle and its functions in a gasoline motor. Is each stroke a cycle, etc.?

The word cycle refers to a complete set of operations beginning the intake stroke and ending with the exhaust stroke. The four strokes of the piston are: intake, compression, expansion, and exhaust. The four strokes of the piston are: intake, compression, expansion, and exhaust.

MEAT CAUSE OF KIDNEY TROUBLE

Take Salts to Flush Kidneys if Back Hurts or Bladder Bothers.

If you must have your meat every day, eat it, but flush your kidneys with salts occasionally, says a noted authority who tells us that meat forms uric acid which almost paralyzes the kidneys in their effort to expel it from the blood. They become sluggish and weaken, then you suffer with a dull misery in the kidney region, sharp pains in the back or sick headache, dizziness, your stomach sour, tongue is coated and when the weather is bad you have rheumatic twinges. The urine gets cloudy, full of sediment, the channels often get sore and irritated, obliging you to seek relief two or three times during the night.

To neutralize these irritating acids, to cleanse the kidneys and flush off the body's urinous waste get four ounces of Jad Salts from any pharmacy here; take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast for a few days and your kidneys will then act fine. This famous salt is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and has been used for generations to flush and stimulate sluggish kidneys, also to neutralize the acids in urine, so it no longer irritates, thus ending bladder weakness.

FAIRIES AND GRIM TRAGEDY COMBINED IN TRIANGLE PLAY

Norma Talmadge the Star of New Drama "The Children in the House."

The story of "The Children in the House," a new Triangle-Fine Arts release, featuring Norma Talmadge to be shown at the Opera House tomorrow covers a varied action with thrills, laughter, tears and poetic fancy much interwoven. Arthur Vincent, a real estate dealer, neglects his wife, and two children while in the toils of Jane Courtenay, an empty-headed cabaret dancer. Cora, the wife, frequently visits her sister Alice who lives next door. Alice is the wife of Fred Brown, a detective, and has three children. With the family lives Fred's bachelor brother, Charles, who is a former lover of Cora, and cannot bear to see her neglected by her husband. It is during one of Cora's visits to the house, when Charles goes off and sits by the fire alone to try to still his heart-ache, that the children of the house and her children, come to beg him for a "good-night" story. While he is deliberating, one of the children asks him why he has no wife and children of his own; and in this he finds his inspiration. Unknown to him, Cora is listening behind the curtain.

He tells them the story of how he once lived in the Enchanted Forest of Dreams, loving a beautiful fairy called Sweetheart, and how she, in answer to his prayers to True Love, Queen of all the fairies, was made mortal and hit by Cupid's dart to make her heart tender toward him. They were very happy, continues Charles, until Selfish, son of the Ogre who lived in the forest, desired her. Selfish sent two dwarfs, Lies and Jealousy, to cast a spell over Sweetheart, and the spell cast, Sweetheart went off with Selfish. When Charles saw this, he fell down dead; but the fairies brought him back to life by replacing his heart with a cold stone. Later, Cora and Charles are thrown together, and she admits that her heart has been a cold stone, too. And the old love blazes up fiercely.

In the meantime, Arthur is in danger of losing his cabaret girl because his money is giving out. So he plans to rob the bank. His plan is ingenious; and when the bank is robbed, suspicion is cast upon Charles, the cashier. Charles is unable to declare his alibi, that he was with Cora, for fear of bringing scandal upon her and her children.

But the children at play have found the hiding-place of the real thieves. And the police fight that follows brings happiness to Charles, to Cora, and to the children in the house.

CURWENSVILLE NEWS

The Progress correspondent has been requested to announce, through
the Curwensville letter, that the regular monthly meeting of the Civic
club will be held on Tuesday evening
next, at which time a good program
will be carried out, as well as some other important questions will be brought up for discussion. All members are requested to be present and
the public is cordially invited.

The Rescue boys were out last evening brushing up on drill tactics and marching formations. They left on the early train this morning for Clearfield, where they will take part in the general parade. The drill team will not enter any of the contests this year, as so many of the regular team
are away from home and could not make it convenient to get away from
their employment.

The case of Hricko, of Patton, vs.
Calvin Moyer, of Faunce, has been settled. On June 26th Hricko had Moyer arrested for running into him
on the "narrows" and pushing his machine into the river. The case was tried before Squire Dale, and both entered bail for a court trial, but got together the other day and made an amicable settlement.

The lumber is now on the ground
for the re-flooring of the bridge across
Anderson Creek, at the foot of Pil-
bert street, and Contractors Richards
and Smith affirm that the work will be completed by the middle of next week. The delay has been caused by their inability to secure the right
kind of lumber, finding it necessary
to have a special bill sawed out, to fill the specifications up to the standard.

Mrs. John Bowers left yesterday
for Pittsburgh where she will visit
some days with her daughter, Mrs.
Mary Davis.

The rain and hail storm that visited
the country west of this place Tuesday afternoon caused great devastation among the corn and buck wheat
crops. Merritt Caldwell, who came in from that direction yesterday forenoon, gathered a stalk of corn from one of the fields and brought it to
town as a sample of the storm's
work. The leaves were stripped into strings as fine as threads, even the
covering of the ear was threatened.

The buckwheat fields are destroyed almost entirely, and the grain will not be worth garnering. The width of the storm's path was about three miles
in width. Curwensville got none of the hail and very little of the rain.
That the rain part of the storm was severe west of here was evident from
the heavy flow of water coming
through the Anderson creek channel.

R. R. Peters and family, of Mt.
Union, are in town and stopping at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Ira A. Shafer, the parents of Mrs. Peters. Mr.
Peters holds a responsible and important position in the Harbison-Walke brick plant at Mt. Union. The family will spend about ten days here
and then motor home.

John McLaughlin, who is close to the eighty-five year mark, had the misfortune to fall down the outside cellar steps on Tuesday and injure his back quite painfully. His many town friends hope that no permanent injury will result from the fall.

The home of William Twigg, Jr.,
is quarantined, one of his daughters
is quarantined, one of his little daughters having become afflicted
with scarlet fever. The case is a slight one and there seems to be no
reason for the spreading of the disease as the family are taking every precaution to prevent anything of that sort happening.

Some twelve of the town boys have gone into camp in the Bloom bungalows near Ferncliff.

During the absence of Rev. Mr.
Parkhill, the Presbyterian pulpit will be filled by other ministers. Sunday, both morning and evening, a minister from Glen Richey will preach. The weekly services will be observed as usual.

George Twigg and wife, visited at the home of Mr. and Mrs. William Twigg, Sr., Sunday and for several days this week.

An exciting runaway of a team of horses attached to a wagon, drew the attention of a number of people yesterday afternoon. The team was owned by Calvin Bizer from out along the pike. They covered the distance of three squares at high speed, and wound up in the Moose yard. Little damage was done to the wagon and harness.

George Bressler, a young son of Boyd Bressler was taken to the Clearfield hospital yesterday. He was suffering from an attack of typhoid fever.

Miss Mary Kelly will entertain a number of her young friends at the home of her parents, west end of Main street, this evening.

A number of Curwensville boys

Victor McLaughlin, D. D. S., yesterday evening. The occasion was the celebration of the school's anniversary.

The Curwensville Re-Constructed Stone company have orders on hand at the present time that will keep the plant busy several months. Just now the plant is getting out material for two new houses, one for John Nepp and another for William Troy. This material for house building is fast gaining favor and not many years hence, as lumber advances, most of the new houses to be built in Curwens-ville will be constructed from it.

Harold Smith, son of P. E. Smith, who has been visiting in Bradford,

SABBATH

W. D. Blood, Export Manager of the Hendee Manufacturing Company, Springfield, Mass., makers of Indian Motorcycles, has just returned from an extended business trip around the world, while thoroughly covered New Zealand, Australia, Tasmania, South Africa, Ceylon, Indian Siam, Federated Malay States, Singapore, Java, the Philippines, China and Japan. This trip, which began last September, caused Mr. Blood to travel some 60, 000 miles, and afforded ample opportunity to study at first hand the many foreign trade questions which today confront American exporters.

Several new Indian agencies were established at points where it was thought advisable, which together with those already in existence make it possible for a purchaser to obtain in any foreign center of population an Indian Motorcycle of the very latest design. Indian service, however, goes farther than that for it is now possible to obtain right from the stocks of these same dealers everywhere any part that may be required in the upkeep of any model. This matter of attention to service details, and this thorough distribution of parts service is not approached by any other motocycle manufacturer in either American or English make.

The great value of service as a feature of foreign trade in motor vehicles has impressed itself firmly upon Mr. Blood, and the first step in expansion in foreign markets has been taken in this widespread installation of parts and service stations throughout the world. This obviates the great delay in sending to the United States for required parts, or the necessity of depending upon the local machinist for the making of parts, and insures to Indian riders everywhere a thorough and efficient upkeep service.

Mr. Blood is most enthusiastic over the splendid future of fields abroad for the export manufacturer, and is convinced that the proper handling of the export business will win for American its just share of foreign trade.

CLEARFIELD, PENNSYLVANIA, THURSDAY, AUGUST 24, 1916

THE BIG CONVENTION IN FULL SWING--THOUSANDS MARCH IN THE PARADE

Rowles Murderer Is Caught In Cleveland Brought Here Today

Mike Dennery, The "Big Swede", Captured After Seven Months Chase--County Detective Escorts Him To Clearfield

SCORE ANOTHER HIT FOR THE PROGRESS

County Detective Jeffries arrived in town this morning with Mike Dennery who is known as the "Big Swede" and who is wanted here for the Rowles' murder committed last winter. Detective Jeffries brought Dennery from Cleveland to DuBois on the early morning flyer and came to Clearfield on the firemen's excursion.

Yesterday the Progress told you that the big swede had been caught but were unable to get a confirmation of this report from local authorities. Our news connection, however, enabled us to publish this information in advance of any other source.

The capture of the Big Swede culminates a chase of several months during all of which time the authorities knew about where he was, but not until the last two or three days could they definitely locate him.

On arriving in Clearfield this morning the Big Swede did not seem at all worried, but marched up the street from the depot and hardly anyone suspected that he was the man wanted for the crime of murder. He was not handcuffed and walked along with the county detective much in the same manner as anyone coming to the Firemen's Convention would.

"ONE WHO KNOWS" SENDS DETAILS OF ACCIDENT

Corrects Reports to Progress About Grampian Auto Smash-up

Grampian, Pa., 8-22-16.
Clearfield Progress,
Clearfield, Pa.,

Dear Sirs: We noticed in the Monday evening Progress a number of mistakes in the report of the automobile accident which happened Monday morning at 1:30 o'clock a. m. at a curve beyond Grampian near Mrs. Albert Kester's. John McDevitt and Mr. Heath, returning from DuBois on Mr. McDevitt's motorcycle arrived on the scene about five minutes after the accident occurred. One of the ladies, who was slightly injured, ran to the home of Mrs. Albert Kester and telephoned to Dr. Miller of Grampian to come at once and she also telephoned to the DuBois garage and Grampian garage for cars to take the injured home. Dr. Miller arrived on the scene about 20 minutes afterward and immediately reduced the fractured arm of Miss Nell Clark.

He then rendered such aid to Mr. Deitz as possible under such circumstances. At about this time Mr. Wigglesworth of the Grampian garage arrived and took Miss Nell Clark, and a lady friend and one of the gentlemen to their homes in DuBois. About 1 hour and a half from this time Mr. Whitmarsh of DuBois arrived in his automobile and bringing with him Dr. Hughes of DuBois, when the rest of the injured party were immediately placed in the car and started for DuBois. We make this statement in defense of Dr. Miller, who received but slight credit whereas he having done all the work that was rendered there. Dr. Miller knows nothing of this statement being sent in. We feel like giving Dr. Miller justice, hoping to see this statement in a prominent place in your paper.

"One Who Knows."

MAD DOG BITES EIGHT.

Pittsburgh, Aug. 24.—(By United Press)—Eight persons are under close observation in a hospital here today who were all slightly bitten on July 12, by a mad dog, following the death of Mrs. Mary Summerville of Monongahela City, who according to the doctors' diagnosis died from hydrophobia. She died in great agony. Shortly after the homes of three families who had been visiting Mrs. Summerville were next visited.

FUN AND MUSIC TO FEATURE CAMPAIGN

Local Talent Play is Replete With Novelties.

Undoubtedly one of the season's most notable and certainly most worthy events will be the presentation next week of the big local talent play "Betty's Campaign," under the auspices of the Ladies Auxiliary of the hospital.

A cast of some hundred local people will present the farce, and in this clever and catchy comedy Clearfield will have an opportunity of witnessing her best talent in two nights of fun, frolic and music.

The play is one of the most original and clever entertainments before the public—and any person, who enjoys fun and a good laugh, should not fail to take in "Betty's Campaign," which is just brimming over with laughter and replete with charming specialties.

Mr. Innes, the director, who is a clever impersonator, will play the role of "Betty" and his performance is worth seeing.

BIGLER CAMP MEETING WILL BE CONTINUED

A. C. Lansbery, proprietor and manager of the Bigler Camp meeting and grounds, has been prevailed upon to continue the meeting this week over until next Sabbath, September 2. The grounds are beautiful and are well seated and lighted artistically. A fine flowing fountain is a very attractive curiosity. On Sunday next Rev. E. G. Sawyer, the evangelist pastor, will have charge of the services. He will preach the sermons and Miss Sawyer, his daughter, will have charge of the music.

Mr. Lansbery desires the public to know that all automobiles will be admitted into the grounds and will be provided with the best of shade free. All are invited to spend next Sunday at Bigler Camp Meeting.

GRAND BALL GREAT SUCCESS

The banquet and ball given by the local firemen in honor of the visiting delegates to the twenty-fourth annual convention of the Central District Volunteer Firemen's association was a grand success and was pronounced the best in the history of the organization. The banquet was held in the dining hall of the Dimeling hotel and the ball in the ball room of the hotel immediately following the banquet.

A sumptuous repast was served by Manager McGinnis, of the Dimeling to the 178 delegates—honor guests who were present. The banquet started at seven o'clock sharp and continued until about nine thirty when the McKinley orchestra of Curwensville struck up the first one step in the ball room and all the delegates swarmed there to participate in the dancing.

At the banquet, District President and Local Chief J. D. Connelly acted as toastmaster and performed his duties with his usual grace, starting things off with a humorous, but fitting address. The first speaker was Burgess Callahan who extended to the delegates a warm welcome to Clearfield and opened up its doors to the honored guests, the firemen.

Judge Bell was then called upon and gave one of his usual interesting and amusing after-dinner speeches. Assistant State Fire Marshal Charles Dr. Wolfe was present, acting in his official capacity and gave an address filled with good information and advice. He was also a guest of honor in the parade. Judge Eugene C. Bonniwell of Philadelphia, president of the state firemen's association and a guest of honor of the local organization, spoke. Dr. Bender gave the invocation and Rev. Mechen dismissed the gathering.

The grand ball in the dancing hall was attended by over one hundred firemen and invited guests. The Curwensville orchestra furnished the music for the occasion. The first one step was started at nine thirty and the home waltz was not played until after twelve thirty o'clock. Everyone reports a wonderful time.

HUGHES ABOUT READY FOR WEEK'S VACATION

Ogden, Utah, Aug. 24.—Ogden gave Charles E. Hughes a tremendous welcome this afternoon when the Republican candidate arrived to address a crowd which jammed the city's largest auditorium. He will leave shortly after speaking here for Salt Lake City, 30 miles south, where he will deliver his second and last address in Utah this evening.

While showing no marked effects of his swift trans-continental campaign trip which opened August 5, Governor Hughes is looking forward to a week's vacation in the Estes Park region of the Rocky Mountains beginning next Sunday.

Washington, Aug. 24.—Men with long, tapering "piano" fingers are apt to desert after short service, while those having stubby digits, denoting stability of character and utter lack of artistic temperament, usually stand by their oaths and make the best marines, according to finger print experts at headquarters of the United States Marine Corps.

Although desertions from the corps are light at all times it has been found that actors, sign writers, and, strange to say, waiters, furnish the largest number of deserters.

Records, including finger prints, of all men enlisted in the marine corps are kept at headquarters for purposes of identification, and there are cases on record where bodies, with finger tips intact, have been positively identified through the finger print medium.

NEW ARGENTINE PRESIDENT HAS NO PLATFORM

Country Will Start On Big Experiment When Dr. Irigoyen Takes Oath of Office

MAY DISBAND RADICAL PARTY

By Chas. P. Stewart
(United Press Staff Correspondent)
Buenos Aires, Aug. 1.—(By Mail)—When Hipolito Irigoyen takes the oath of office October 12 as president of Argentina, his country will start on one of the biggest experiments ever undertaken by a republic. Dr. Irigoyen will head the first Radical administration in Argentina.

What the doctor's idea of radicalism is, nobody knows. He has made no speeches. He has written almost nothing. He has never defined his position. What he intends to do as president, not one of his countrymen can guess. Nobody knows whether he is Pan-American.

The Radical party was organized in Argentina to fight for fair elections. It has never had any other platform. "We have ideals," leading members of the party say, "but no program."

There are even reports that Dr. Irigoyen will issue a manifesto soon dissolving the party itself, now that an honest ballot, as he is said to believe, has been guaranteed. This however is mere surmise.

The doctor was elected president because a majority of the voters trusted him, personally, implicitly and blindly.

Those who believe in him consider him Argentina's greatest man. His opponents regard him as extremely dangerous, and look forward to his administration with the gravest misgivings.

Dr. Irigoyen is about 60, tall, powerfully built, imposing man, and very dark. His blood is Spanish Basque with a slight Indian strain, some say.

He is smoothly shaven, except for a very thin black mustache. Popular rumor is that the thinness is due to the doctor's custom of extracting the white hairs, which are reported to have appeared so numerous in recent years as to leave but a scattering representation after their elimination.

The new president began life poor. He is self-educated but did his work so well that, today, he is a highly cultivated man.

Most prominent South Americans possess some academic degree entitling them to the prefix of "doctor" before their names. Irigoyen is spoken of as "doctor" because he is prominent. The title is one of courtesy. He lacks the degree.

He is now very rich. His wealth was accumulated in successful land transactions. By occupation he is a ranchman on a huge scale. Part of his time he spends on his "estancia" in the country; the rest at his very modest residence in Buenos Aires.

For a long time, for pure recreation, he held the professorship of civic instruction at the Buenos Aires Escuela Normal de Mujeres, or Normal School for Women. His salary for this work he turned over regularly to the Sociedad de Beneficencia, or United Charities of Buenos Aires. Twelve years ago a president who was his personal enemy caused his removal from this post in the normal school and he has never held it since.

For twenty years he has been the Radical party's leader. His authority has been absolute. His opponents within the party's ranks have been few and, sooner or later, he has always won them over.

"His mere presence," as one of his admirers expresses it, "is magnetic." Twice he has been concerned in attempted revolutions. He was very successful but finally failed through

Lively Scenes Mark Second Day of Big Firemen's Convention

Officers Elected For Coming Year at Business Meeting Held Yesterday Afternoon In Dimeling Hotel

THOUSANDS THROG STREETS OF TOWN

Gay scenes, miniature parades and the swarming in of thousands of firemen, marked the opening of the second and biggest day of the twenty-fourth annual convention and tournament of the Central District Volunteer Firemen's Association which started yesterday morning and which will close at sometime tonight. Thousands of firemen and citizens thronged the streets all morning arriving here on regular and special trains on all roads, hundreds of automobiles and as many other vehicles.

Many of the business houses and manufacturing plants have been closed or will close about noon so that the employees will be able to participate in the festivities. Every person within a radius of twenty miles has come to Clearfield to watch the tournament and enjoy the hospitality of Clearfield, which has been given over entirely to the firemen.

A special train on the B. R. & P. arriving here about nine o'clock brought the DuBois fire companies and other companies from that section which were accompanied by the Holy Name band of DuBois under the leadership of Con Allen, postmaster of DuBois. Over three hundred marched in the parade headed by the band playing "America, I Love You," from the station to the center of the town.

Altoona, Tyrone and other companies on the P. R. R. line came in a special train pulling in at ten o'clock. Four bands with about eight fire companies formed a parade at the station and marched to the center of the town. About a dozen of these parades stirred up the enthusiasm of the firemen early this morning and from ten o'clock until noon the gayest scenes ever witnessed in Clearfield were in progress.

The people kept swarming in to the Big Convention during the entire morning and with the hundreds that were here yesterday make the largest crowd that has thronged the streets of this town. Not since the last firemen's convention held here, has such a lively crowd visited the town for a convention. The hotels are filled to capacity and many boarding houses and private homes are overflowing.

OFFICERS ARE ELECTED.

The business meeting of the convention was called to order yesterday afternoon at two o'clock by the District President, J. D. Connelly who is also chief of the Clearfield Fire Department. After transacting the regular business of the year the following officers were elected:

President, Charles E. Messner, of Jersey Shore.
Vice President, J. D. Blair, of Patton.
Vice President, Paul D. Portney, of Bellefonte.
Secretary, W. C. Langsford, of Houtzdale (Re-elected).
Treasurer, Frank W. Grebe, Philipsburg.
Delegate to State Convention, J. D. Connelly, Clearfield.
Alternate, Paul D. Portney.

Over one thousand persons, consisting of twenty five fire companies and eight bands and one drum corps marched for over two hours today in the parade of the Central Pennsylvania Volunteer Firemen's Association, which was the biggest demonstration ever witnessed in Clearfield. It took half an hour for the entire parade to pass a spot on Second street.

The parade formed on South Second street about 11 o'clock and was disbanded shortly after one o'clock. The police patrol, Fifth Regiment Band, and Chief Marshal J. C. Barclay, headed the parade and were followed by the borough council and burgesses and veteran firemen in automobiles. The guests of honor, Judge Singleton Bell, Judge Bonniwell, State Fire Marshal Wolfe and Chas. E. Messner, District President-elect, followed in Judge Bell's automobile which was artistically and handsomely decorated in plumes and bunting.

Prizes will be awarded to the largest company in line, the best equipped company in line and the best band in line of parade. The prizes are Fred G. Betts, Fred Weaver, Fred Kerr, Fred Freiser and F. G. Smith for the best equipped and best drilled company. This committee will also judge the tournament at the park. Prof. Thayer will judge the band concert and the bands in the parade. John M. Bain and O. B. McCullough are the judges of the companies.

The prizes have not been awarded yet. The tournament at the park started at one-thirty and was witnessed by thousands.

Expert Advice For the Automobile Owner

Queries and Replies Covering Matters of Importance to the Man Who Runs a Car

I read an article about set spark which stated that the piston should be within one-half inch of top on compression stroke when the spark should occur. Is this right? If so, I have been setting mine wrong. My engine has a set spark, and the only gas control is a foot accelerator. Now, when the throttle is closed for idle running I have my spark occur when the piston is at top dead center on compression stroke. If I change it to occur one-half inch before top center, will it be all right? What is the best position for the most power obtainable.

Carry the spark as far ahead as you can without having the engine knock and without having it kick back in starting. The distance in advance of dead center depends on the speed of the motor and on the type of ignition apparatus. This is true because the higher the motor speed the farther in advance should be the spark and the greater the mechanical and electrical lag in the ignition apparatus the further ahead the spark should be set.

I wish to increase my compression to 100 pounds. How much can I plane off my cylinder head, and how much will I have to raise my pistons?

It is impossible to tell you how much to reduce the volume of your combustion chamber to reach 100 pounds compression without knowing what the original volume is, or how much the bore of the cylinder is. The method of procedure, however, which you can follow to work out the problem for yourself is as follows: Multiply the compression pressure by the volume of your present combustion chamber and divide it by 100 to secure the total volume of the new combustion chamber.

What is the correct heat a tire should have in order to vulcanize, and how long should it be kept at that heat?

This depends whether it is the inner tube or outer tube you are vulcanizing, as far as time is concerned. Generally about fifteen minutes suffices to make an inner tube vulcanized at a temperature of about 145 degrees C. The tire shoe takes a longer time, depending on the depth of vulcanization. It would be best to simply follow the directions with your vulcanizing outfit for practical results, as this has been worked out to give proper temperatures for the conditions for which it is designed.

Why is the spark advanced when cranking on the magneto, and why should a magneto armature run at engine speed on four cycle, four cylinder engines?

The spark is advanced to take care of mechanical and electrical lag and to make the explosion occur as nearly as possible to upper dead center. In cranking, if the spark occurs at the point of highest compression, ignition is much more certain.

The magneto produces two sparks to the revolution, and since a four cylinder, four cycle engine has two explosions to the revolution, it is necessary in order to have the two sparks to have the magneto operating at engine speed.

Is it more accurate to use a hydrometer syringe or a voltmeter to get the results of the life in a storage battery?

The hydrometer will tell you one thing and the voltmeter another in examining the condition of a battery. The hydrometer tells you the specific gravity of the electrolyte, which must be within certain limits in order for the battery to function properly. If a hydrometer shows between 1.272 and 1.3 when the battery is fully charged the electrolyte is in proper condition. However, it is quite possible for the electrolyte to be in good condition and the battery to show a low voltage on the meter because the plates may be broken down or some other internal trouble not giving the full voltage.

Can you give me some information regarding the potash kettle for cleaning motor parts on dismantling a motor for machine shop use and the proper mixing for use in the kettle? I am told that soda will do the same thing. I tried it without much success, and it turned aluminum black. There is a demand for a cleaning mixture other than gasoline.

The cleaning fluid which you desire will naturally depend upon the metal to be cleaned. Since you mention aluminum, it is probable that the information wanted covers aluminum cleaning, and a formula for making this fluid is simply a solution of three grams of borax in one liter of water containing a few drops of ammonia water. To remove discoloration or solution of one having been treated with caustic soda, add one gallon of warm water. Leave the part standing in this solution overnight and then clean it with a clean cloth. A strong solution of caustic soda from soda ash and water can be made by adding one pound of caustic soda to two gallons of water. This solution should be used for cleaning, but the parts, if not too large, should be dipped into it. All that has to be done after this is simply rinse and dry the parts thoroughly.

Will you please define and explain

to automobiles or any other piece of mechanism. It is the force which tends to produce rotation or torsion and is measured tangentially by multiplying the force by the radius about the axis of rotation—that is, the torque in given shaft would be equal to the power applied to the shaft times the distance of the tangential point of application from the axis of the shaft.

What is the approximate pull in pounds necessary to operate the service and emergency brakes, direct without any levers, on a medium weight touring car; also, the difference in the perimeter of the two brakes when expanded and contracted, and vice versa, or otherwise the brake displacement, in fully applying the brakes?

This varies through such a range that it is impossible to give any definite figures. It is also difficult to determine whether you mean that the brake is locked on the wheel or whether just applied gently. It may be stated, however, that an application pressure of twenty pounds should firmly close the levers.

The difference in perimeter of the two brakes when expanded and contracted and vice versa is simply the difference between the internal and external diameters of the brake drum. Since you do not mention the size drum you refer to, it is again impossible to give the definite figure, but, taking a standard fourteen inch drum external diameter having a thickness of one-fourth inch, the difference in diameter between the inner and outer circle would be one-half inch, and the difference in circumference would be one-half of 3.1416, or 1.57 inch.

Why do the cylinders of my four cylinder motor become hotter when driven at the rate of five miles an hour in first speed than when driven at fifteen miles an hour on third speed?

Because they do not get the same cooling effect. When traveling at five miles per hour on first speed your motor is turning over faster than when traveling at fifteen miles per hour on high speed. Consequently the cooling system has more work to do. The slow forward movement of your car prevents radiator and motor being fanned by the same air temperature. You can readily see that the car traveling forward at fifteen miles per hour, with revolutions per minute of motor the same or slower, will give a greater and more cooling breeze over radiator and motor than the slower moving car. This difference will determine to a large degree the cooling or overheating of the motor.

Will water remove carbon? If so, would you advise running it through the carburetor?

There are a great many who believe very strongly in the use of water for removing carbon, and there is no doubt but that it assists in this respect to some extent. It would be better, however, not to introduce it into the carburetor, but into the intake manifold between the carburetor and the cylinder. It should be allowed to enter in very minute quantities. The action which probably takes place is this: When the water enters the cylinder it is probably transformed into steam, which cuts away the carbon binding substances in the cylinder.

Will you please explain the firing and timing of eight and twelve cylinder motors?

The timing and firing of all multi-cylinder engines is arranged to accommodate the angles at which the different cranks are set to each other. This must be done in order that the engine will balance. Regardless of how the engine is timed or the firing order, each cylinder carries out its independent action as if it were a single cylinder motor, and it does not depend on any other cylinder to assist it in carrying out its cycle. The firing order naturally depends altogether on the valve timing of each cylinder, since it is only a matter of exploding the charge which is compressed in the proper cylinder. The firing orders of eight and twelve cylinders are as follows: Since the angle of the crank is just exactly the same as if there were two four cylinder engines operating on the same crank shaft, which is exactly what holds true in a twelve cylinder engine, the firing order is the same as for two four cylinders.

Please explain the meaning of the word cycle and its functions in a gasoline motor. Is each stroke a cycle, etc.?

The word cycle refers to a complete set of operations bringing the engine back to the point referred to at the beginning. When you say the words four cycle, it means that four strokes are necessary to complete one revolution of the crank shaft. The four strokes are: compression, explosion, expansion and exhaust. As each stroke is only one-fourth of a revolution, it is necessary in carrying out the cycle of explosion, expansion, exhaust and exhaust.

The story of "The Children in the House," a new Triangle-Fine Arts release, featuring Norma Talmadge to be shown at the Opera House tomorrow covers a varied action with thrills, laughter, tears and poetic fancy much interwoven. Arthur Vincent, a real estate dealer, neglects his wife, and two children while in the toils of Jane Courtenay, an empty-headed cabaret dancer. Cora, the wife, frequently visits her sister Alice who lives next door. Alice is the wife of Fred Brown, a detective, and has three children. With the family lives Fred's bachelor brother, Charles, who is a former lover of Cora, and cannot bear to see her neglected by her husband. It is during one of Cora's visits to the house, when Charles goes off and sits by the fire alone to try to still his heart-ache, that the children of the house and her children, come to beg him for a "good-night" story. While he is deliberating, one of the children asks him why he has no wife and children of his own; and in this he finds his inspiration. Unknown to him, Cora is listening behind the curtain.

He tells them the story of how he once lived in the Enchanted Forest of Dreams, loving a beautiful fairy called Sweetheart, and how she, in answer to his prayers to True Love, Queen of all the fairies, was made mortal and hit by Cupid's dart to make her heart tender toward him. They were very happy, continues Charles, until Selfish, son of the Ogre who lived in the forest, desired her. Selfish sent two dwarfs, Lies and Jealousy, to cast a spell over Sweetheart, and the spell cast, Sweetheart went off with Selfish. When Charles saw this, he fell down dead; but the fairies brought him back to life by replacing his heart with a cold stone. Later, Cora and Charles are thrown together, and she admits that her heart has been a cold stone, too. And the old love blazes up fiercely.

In the meantime, Arthur is in danger of losing his cabaret girl because his money is giving out. So he plans to rob the bank. His plan is ingenious; and when the bank is robbed, suspicion is cast upon Charles, the cashier. Charles is unable to declare his alibi, that he was with Cora, for fear of bringing scandal upon her and her children.

But the children at play have found the hiding-place of the real thieves. And the police fight that follows brings happiness to Charles, to Cora, and to the children in the house.

MEAT CAUSE OF KIDNEY TROUBLE

Take Salts to Flush Kidneys if Back Hurts or Bladder Bothers.

If you must have your meat every day, eat it, but flush your kidneys with salts occasionally, says a noted authority who tells us that meat forms uric acid which almost paralyzes the kidneys in their effort to expel it from the blood. They become sluggish and weaken, then you suffer with a dull misery in the kidney region, sharp pains in the back or sick headache, dizziness, your stomach sour, tongue is coated and when the weather is bad you have rheumatic twinges. The urine gets cloudy, full of sediment, the channels often get sore and irritated, obliging you to seek relief two or three times during the night.

To neutralize these irritating acids, to cleanse the kidneys and flush off the body's urinous waste get four ounces of Jad Salts from any pharmacy here; take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast for a few days and your kidneys will then act fine. This famous salt is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and has been used for generations to flush and stimulate sluggish kidneys, also to neutralize the acids in urine, so it no longer irritates, thus ending bladder weakness.

Jad Salts is inexpensive; cannot injure, and makes a most delightful effervescent lithia-water drink.

CURWENSVILLE NEWS

The Progress correspondent has
been requested to announce, through
the Curwensville letter, that the regular monthly meeting of the Civic
club will be held on Tuesday evening
next, at which time a good program
will be carried out, as well as some
other important questions will be brought up for discussion. All members are requested to be present and
the public is cordially invited.

The Rescue boys were out last ev-
marching formations. They left on
the early train this morning for Clear-
field, where they will take part in the general parade. The drill team will
not enter any of the contests this
year, as so many of the regular team
are away from home and could not
make it convenient to get away from
their employment.

The case of Hricko, of Patton, vs.
Calvin Moyer, of Faunce, has been settled. On June 26th Hricko had Moyer arrested for running into him
on the "narrows" and pushing his machine into the river. The case was tried before Squire Dale, and both
entered bail for a court trial, but got
together the other day and made an
amicable settlement.

The lumber is now on the ground
for the re-flooring of the bridge across
Anderson Creek, at the foot of Pil-
bert street, and Contractors Richards
and Smith affirm that the work will
be completed by the middle of next week. The delay has been caused by
their inability to secure the right
kind of lumber, finding it necessary
to have a special bill sawed out, to fill the specifications up to the standard.

Mrs. John Bowers left yesterday
for Pittsburgh where she will visit
some days with her daughter, Mrs.
Mary Davis.

The rain and hail storm that visited
the country west of this place Tuesday afternoon caused great devastat-
ion among the corn and buck wheat
crops. Merritt Caldwell, who came
in from that direction yesterday forenoon, gathered a stalk of corn from
one of the fields and brought it to
town as a sample of the storm's
work. The leaves were stripped into strings as fine as threads, even the
covering of the ear was threatened.

The buckwheat fields are destroyed almost
entirely, and the grain will not be worth garnering. The width of the
storm's path was about three miles
in width. Curwensville got none of
the hail and very little of the rain.
That the rain part of the storm was
severe west of here was evident from
the heavy flow of water coming
through the Anderson creek channel.

R. R. Peters and family, of Mt.
Union, are in town and stopping at

The home of William Twigg, Jr.,
is quarantined, one of his daughters
is quarantined, one of his little
daughters having become afflicted
with scarlet fever. The case is a slight one and there seems to be no
reason for the spreading of the disease as the family are taking every
precaution to prevent anything of that sort happening.
